Freight Surcharges:

The operational cost of doing business globally has been increasing, especially when it comes to freight and transportation. Our current economic environment makes it necessary for Portage Electric Products, Inc. (PEPI®) to implement a freight surcharge due to factors related to COVID-19 restrictions issued in countries around the world. Those restrictions are disrupting the global supply chain and as a result air freight capacity is limited. We are incurring ever-increasing costs from our suppliers and logistic networks to this limited capacity.

The freight surcharge is being applied to PEPI® products which originate outside of the United States of America and the charge will be noted on Pepi® Quotes and Order Acknowledgments as a separate line item. The freight surcharge will be applied until global transportation capacity returns to more normal levels and freight charges along with it. This line item surcharge will be clearly shown on quotes, order acknowledgments, and invoices. The surcharges will be based on the increases that PEPI® is being assessed at the time the order is quoted or placed. Quoted prices, if beyond 60 days old, will be revised if necessary, to reflect current charges prior to orders being accepted and entered into production schedules.
